The Concept Of Money

The story from the May 2025 issue, What Defines Gen Z Money Habits, is a relatable take on how our generation spends and thinks about money. The concept of "doom spending" really hits home, and the expert advice made it both engaging and useful.

Financial Knowledge

It is very saddening to see the younger generation relying mostly on social media for their knowledge and guidance on managing finances and investing, rather than following traditional mediums or asking for professional help. The article, Are Online Knowledge Sources Helping Gen Z Crack The Investing Code?, from the May 2025 issue lays down the preferences of the Gen Z in a very straightforward manner.

The Right Life Insurance

I have been looking for a life insurance policy for a while now, but was confused due to the plethora of plans available. Which Life Insurance Policy Should You Buy? article in the May 2025 issue provided much clarity.

The Lure Of High Returns

It was interesting to find how people can be so blindsided by the promises of high returns from F&O trading (Big

Investing Tips

The interview of Raamdeo Agrawal in the Wealth Wizards series, May 2025 issue, was excellent and provided useful inputs that can prove helpful to common investors like me who may be confused due to prevailing market volatility. I could understand the strategy of Motilal Oswal while choosing the scrips and found their methodology really impressive. He has also very clearly explained the concept of value and pricing. The questions were also very focused.
