RSS: One Hundred Years Of...

6 | SACRED AND THE SCARED

An organisation that takes pride in being rock solid in times of liquid modernity, can it catch up with the change?

By Ajay Gudavarthy

20 | DOUBLETHINK

It is clear that the very foundation of the RSS was laid to show Muslims their place and keep them in check

By Saiyyad Mohammad
Nizamuddin Pasha

36 | GROWTH AND SUCCESS

Shared ideas and unimaginable patience, along with uncontested moral upbringing of its cadres, have ensured the success of the RSS

By Rakesh Sinha

56 | AN UPHILL CLIMB

Kerala, long resistant to Hindutva politics, paradoxically hosts more RSS shakhas than most Indian states today

By N.K. Bhoopesh

12 | ADAPTING

Author and politician Ram Madhav talks to Outlook's Editor Chinki Sinha about the RSS' views on Hindus, Hindu Rashtra, ghar wapsi, love jihad, caste, reservations, Adivasis and much more...

26 | AD DHARM

The consciousness of belief in the divine and the sacred is the consciousness of "protected ignorance"

By Y. S. Alone

40 | RESISTANCE

Who is afraid of the RSS? No one is today. Minus the trappings of a very flabby militia, the organisation looks like any other outfit

By Harish Khare

70 | VICISSITUDE

New histories, social work and indigenous faith revivalism are the three pillars of the RSS' approach in Northeast India

By Snigdendu Bhattacharya

16 | THE DEEP STATE

Christophe Jaffrelot, a professor of Indian politics and sociology at King's India Institute, London, talks to Chinki Sinha about the RSS' roadblocks to saffronise India

32 | BORROWED PRIDE

The RSS thrives on OBC amnesia, offering borrowed pride in Hindu identity in exchange for complete obedience

By Anand Kshirsagar

52 | BEING CHECKMATED

Tamil Nadu has more temples than any other state in India, but has refused to endorse a single religion's supremacy

By A. S. Panneerselvan

80 | INFLUENCING

RSS publications are thriving at a time when the print media is facing a big circulation challenge

By R. Balashankar
