JUDICIARY

Whether a conflict of interest exists in the judiciary regulating itself without independent oversight remains a grey area

PLUS

Process of disciplining judges must be fair, impartial and time-bound, guided by the principles of natural justice

—Justice Madan Lokur

Executive interested in government participation in appointments to higher judiciary

—K.K. Venugopal, former attorney general of India

Unless the Supreme Court takes full control of the process to remove corrupt judges of constitutional courts, the political class will step in

—Bishwajit Bhattacharyya, former additional solicitor general of India

39

POLITICS

The cost of populist schemes has Maharashtra reeling; Karnataka and Telangana, too, are struggling to foot the welfare bill

COLUMNS

Forget living in the US, Norwegians now don't even want to go there as tourists. The US was always a top tourist destination, but Trump 2.0 is transformational. The public baiting of Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky in the Oval Office by Trump and his feral Vice President J.D. Vance crossed limits
