On the cover

The fantasy of all-American chipmaking: leader, page 7. Everyone wants the world's biggest chipmaker to leave Taiwan. But TSMC is a culture, not just a company: briefing, page 13. To survive, once-mighty Intel must break itself apart, page 51. Japan was a chipmaking powerhouse. Can it be one again? Page 17

China's post-factory economy

The country will have to pivot away from industry, whatever its leaders' desires, page 57

How heatwaves threaten pregnancies Hotter days are a risk to pregnant women and their babies. Not enough is known about why: leader, page 9, and analysis, page 48

Washington, DC Donald Trump's bossing of the capital city is part of a long history—and a national trend: Lexington, page 30

The end of brainstorming Enjoy the peculiar melange of whiteboards and humans while you can: Bartleby, page 55
